

The NEW ACCEPTED FOR VALUE (NAFV) simplified process.

If you have a remittance coupon you do not need to add in the 1040-V, but if you feel better throwing one in, then feel free to do so. If you are dealing with an IRS "debt" or a court order, which is technically a form of tax, then use the "V". If you have a government loan, as in student loan, you might as well use the "V" there as well. I'm not going to make a list of where the "V" might or might not be appropriate, we've got enough people with at least half a brain that should be able to figure these things out. – Ralph

There is no place for a signature, so don't include one unless you think it will make a difference.

The text colors (Red and Green) used in the examples are for reference ONLY.

If you must use color ink, use blue ink, it'll make the IRS employee feel warm and fuzzy. In other words, Black ink will suffice.

Review the examples provided (in this document) and determine for yourself which way is appropriate for your situation.

The mailing address in NOT optional.

Good luck, and may the IRS be with you.
